THE GREAT EASTERN.

Correspondence of the London Times.

WEYMOUTH, Sunday, Sept. 25, 1859.

The Board necessary for fitting the Great Eastern for her first duty going forward with the utmost diligence and rapidity. The fittings of the ship and all matters connected with her sea-going equipment are now entirely in the hands of the marine department of the Board of Trade. With a passenger-ship of such gigantic magnitude, and which, when occupied, will be one literally with a population equal to that of a large town, it has been felt that no possible precaution should be neglected to secure her safety and most perfect seaworthiness. In all this the Directors and Capt. Hamilton are entirely agreed, and have, we believe, asked the Board of Trade to suggest any improvement which they think can in any way conduce to the safety and convenience of the vessel. The Great Eastern will always carry the best Welsh coals, which, even when stowed in large quantities, have seldom if ever been known to heat. The Great Eastern, however, will carry no less than 10,000 tons, a quantity which, we need not say, has never yet been put into any vessel, and therefore it has been thought right to guard against even the possibility of heat arising from this source. Another matter which will probably be altered is the means of feeding the boilers with water. Until the present massive engines were constructed it has always been the rule to make the main engines feed the boilers, the auxiliaries being used merely as a stand-by in case of any of the pumps breaking down. The machinery of the Great Eastern was made entirely dependent on its feed-water being supplied by the donkey engines—a rather objectionable arrangement, as in case of the donkeys getting out of order, which it has been seen they may do, the boilers must come to a standstill. Feed and bilge pumps will now most likely be fitted to both screw and paddle engines, and the donkeys retained only as a supplementary resource. The passage round from the Thames showed that the hens in the chicken holes of more or two of the small auxiliary engines was too large for the firebars. Sliding iron doors will, therefore, be cut in the bulkheads, in order to give them the proper complete ventilation.

Almost all the wreck has been cleared away from the lower deck in the immediate vicinity of the scene of the explosion; the amount of damage which has been sustained by the boilers and more substantial fittings of the ship can be readily ascertained. The massive iron main-deck beams which were so curiously twisted and torn by the force of the explosion have been cut away, together with the tattered remnants of the lower portions of the funnel jacket which still remained attached to the upper part of the boilers, and altogether the space has been cleared so as to allow the work of restoration to proceed with all due celerity. Upon minute examination it was found that the forward boilers had not been injured to the extent which was at first imagined, not yet escaped entirely without damage. The curved plates of these two boilers, upon which the partial destruction rested, are very much dinted in, and many of the iron stays in the interior are either bent or have been displaced, but not to a serious extent. The extraction of the stays and such of the tubes as it will be necessary to remove will soon be accomplished, but the renovation of the two damaged boilers must occupy time. A few days will suffice to remove the injured iron supports of the main and lower decks. These it is to be hoped that the substantial portions of the ship will be completely refitted in the course of a comparatively few days.

It is not impossible that in a few days the Great Eastern will leave her present moorings, and go round under easy steam to Southampton Water. Nothing on this point is yet finally decided, but both for the convenience of receiving materials from London, and in order to gratify the thousands of excursionists who, even in this remote part of the country, daily visit the ship, it is not unlikely that such a move will be made in response to the invitation received from all the chief towns along the south coast.

PROGRESS OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

A Paris letter in the Nord says: "Prince DE MARMORA, if I am well informed, conveys to Biarritz propositions which differ from those addressed by Lord LEON RUSSELL to the Cabinet of Vienna, in favor of the principle of non-intervention in the affairs of Italy. Austria consents to admit that principle, but on condition that it shall be applied to Piedmont, as well as to every other foreign State, in case that Power should endeavor to repel an attempt of the Italian princes to re-establish their authority. If Piedmont were to intervene, Austria, it is stated, would exercise the same rights, and her troops would cross the Mincio. You perceive that this new phase of the negotiations is a delicate one, and may eventually lead to a resumption of hostilities in Italy. I do not yet know what will be the reply of the Emperor of the French, but it is not doubtful that if the Archdukes attack the present Government in Tuscany and Modena, the Piedmontese army could not look quietly on, and that war would recommence. This is said to be the hope of a certain party at Vienna. It is true that the policy of peace triumphs at this moment at that court, but it is strongly opposed by some persons, and especially by the generals.

Another Paris letter in the same paper, dated a day later, says:

"I can confirm the previous statement as to the confidence felt throughout the political and financial world in the successful issue of Marshal VAILLANT's mission. The arrangements are considered as terminated. A note dispatched from Biarritz by Count WALEWSKI states that the French Government accept the last proposition brought by the Prince. All the reports, though varying in certain details, agree to the fact that the principle of annexation of new States to Piedmont has not prevailed. I have good reason to believe that the two Emperors have only agreed to leave the decision of the question of the Duchies to a Congress, which, it is generally expected, will meet at no distant date. The treaty of peace is first to be signed at Zurich, and hence are entertained in official quarters that this will be accomplished in a few days. As soon as the Cabinet of Vienna receives the note acknowledging the acceptance of the last propositions brought by Prince DE MARMORA, Count CLERMONT and the Baron DE BENEDETTI will be authorized to sign."

The same letter contains the following:

Before his departure from Paris, Count WALEWSKI had a conference with Mgr. SACCONI, the Papal Nuncio. The Pope does not refuse in principle the reforms proposed, but he will not seem to yield to the pressure of a foreign Power or military occupation of his States. The French Government does not despair, however, of inducing the Pope to make the concessions required.

STATE OF ITALY.

The most important news from Italy is the arrival of Gen. FANTI at Florence. This officer, whose celebrity lies entirely in his skill in the art of organizing defeats, is looked upon with suspicion by many who remember how narrowly he escaped being comprised in the sentence against RAMORINO in 1849. VICTOR EMANUEL, even to this day, cannot be made to accept him frankly, and it is well known to have given a reluctant consent to his being employed. MAMIANI in vain calls to mind the brilliant conduct of FANTI during the Crimean war. VICTOR EMANUEL bids him take FANTI on his responsibility, but says nothing more. The opinion which is promulgated in the Italian journals of the misunderstanding which exists between the Emperor of Austria and Louis NAPOLEON, concerning the feasibility of a throne of Etruria being created for Prince NAPOLEON, son-in-law of the King of Sardinia, having met with no contradiction in the Government paper. The people are beginning to renew their belief in this arrangement. Times are altered. LAMORICIERE and Baron MARTIN, as official representatives of the French Press, are appointed to attend the funeral service, which is to be celebrated with great pomp, on the anniversary of MANIN's death, at Milan and Florence, as well as every large town in Italy. The article in the Monitor seems to have wrought as immense change in the feelings of Italy towards France, a change of which MAZZINI will have, ere long, the full and entire profit.

THE WAR IN MOROCCO.

The latest mail from Algeria brings the following details, to the 16th, of what is going on near the frontiers of Morocco:

The Moorish tribes continue their incursions, notwithstanding the reinforcements of troops which have been sent, under the command of Gen. WIMPFEN, near the Tlemcen. A fresh attack was lately made on the camp of Sidi Ecubar; numerous bands of Moors who had come by the road from Oudida surrounded that establishment and commenced firing on the camp close by, as they were aware that reinforcements had arrived. At the sound of the first shot, troops were marched out, but the assailants who did not come much nearer than 1,000 yards, fell like so many hares, and six of them killed. The troops, of course, not the Moors, then retired. The troops have, of course, not the Moors, then retired. The troops have since been employed in burning the douars of the tribes who committed the outrages, and they commenced firing shortly after their return. The Sultan's forces have gone further from the frontier, and the Sultan of Fez, Sidi Ben Ahmed, is at Tlemcen. The Moors have made little, if any, progress in the works they have been constructing, and the principal one has been completely destroyed by the French. It is said that the Moors are now collecting in the neighborhood of Tlemcen, and that they intend to make a vigorous effort to drive the French from the Tlemcen. The Moors are said to be very numerous, and well provided with ammunition, and it is said that they have received a large supply of powder from Tangiers. The Sultan of Morocco is said to be very anxious to avoid a rupture with the French, and has written to the Governor of Algeria to that effect. The Governor has written to the Sultan, and has sent a French officer to Fez to explain the conduct of the French. The Sultan has written to the Governor of Algeria, and has sent a Moorish officer to Tlemcen to explain the conduct of the Moors [illegible] party towards foreign residents. Her [illegible] Majesty's steam-sloop Racer relieved the St. Louis.

This Sloop will, as I learn from a source at San Juan del Norte, visit Aspinwall in about one month, to fill up her provisions. The St. Louis will no doubt return that ship of San Juan. The Preble remains here during the absence of the Roanoke; and her officers will, I understand, perfect arrangements for organizing the expedition for the contemplated examination of the country between the Bay of Caledonia, on the Caribbean Sea, and the Gulf of San Miguel, on the Pacific Ocean, to ascertain its practicability for the purposes of an Inter-Oceanic Canal. Mr. Ayres, [illegible] the North Star, which arrived on the 8th inst.

Gen. Scott, his family and suite, left yesterday afternoon landing her passengers, went to the wharf of the United States Mail Steamship Company, where Capt. Jones brought out to Mr. Rogers, the agent of M. O. Roberts, an order to give the United States steamers the privilege of the wharf, &c. This is a great point in favor of the Company, because the steamers will now take water from the tanks, and not have to go out in the stream and have water. It is said, but I cannot learn it in any reliable authority, that Vanderbilt has ordered the carriage of the United States mails by the Panama route, should Johnson fail to secure the mails and passengers cannot be carried by the way of Nicaragua. It is a notorious fact that long-closed route. One thing, however, is certain, and that is, the Panama Railroad Company will never contract with Vanderbilt for the transportation of the mails across the Isthmus of Panama. The mail here in the Vanderbilt steamers, they will be weighed and charged at the rate of twenty-two cents per pound, and the money will have to be paid down the moment the mails will assuredly not go. The Company will contract with the Post-Master-General of the United States for the transportation of the mails across their road, and I understand that their price is $100,000 annually. I have no doubt, however, that Vanderbilt will get the carrying of the mails, as from the first, I believed that Johnson was his agent, and in reporting the arrangement I stated that the Postmaster Department is carrying the mails by way of the so-called "Nicaragua Transit." It is a well-known fact, both here and in the United States, that when the Postmaster-General contracted with Johnson, by that way, the mails were in possession of the most notorious [illegible] that the harbor of San Juan del Norte was so filled up that the smallest draught vessel could not cross it; and, therefore, passengers and the mails and baggage could not be landed through the heavy and dangerous surf which continually breaks along that shore. Not only this, but the harbor itself has been nearly filled up, and so many obstructions have accumulated in the river, from the harbor to the Castillo Viejo, that it is next to impossible for even the lightest draught boats to ascend. Up to this time no preparations whatever have been made, or even attempted, for carrying the mails, and passengers by the "Nicaragua Transit." It is now, I believe, in fact, at an end, and I doubt whether it can ever be made use, unless at an great expenditure of time and money that capitalists would long hesitate before they engaged in such an undertaking. Nevertheless, it is stated, Vanderbilt will convey the mails and his passengers by the Isthmus of Panama, and that he can open the "Nicaragua Transit," when he will abandon the Panama route. You may believe these things when you know that they are accomplished facts.

There was on the bar at the entrance of the harbor of San Juan del Norte is now only eight feet in depth, and rapidly filling up. I am informed from an authentic source that Capt. Pearce, of Her British Majesty's sloop Espiglet, and Capt. Kennedy, of the United States ship Saratoga, have both recently, and thoroughly examined the bar, and so state. The heavy surf is so dangerous that at times even a small boat cannot safely cross the bar. The greatest volume of water from the San Juan River now passes down the Colorado branch to the sea.

From Our Panama Correspondent.

Panama, Monday, Oct. 3, 1859.

The mail of the 13th September having failed, we have nothing from Bogota later than Aug. 26, noted by last steamer. Nieto, the new revolutionary Governor of Carthagena, is popular, and there does not seem to be much prospect that the late Governor (Obando) and Gen. Posada, who have a small force at their disposal, will dispossess him. Posada had gathered together a few unwilling men at Ocaña, to endeavor to restore "the legitimate authorities," but on the approach of a small squad of revolutionists, had retired to Cucuta.

In the State of Bolivia, of which Carthagena is the capital, the "Liberals" have overthrown the "Conservative" State authorities, while the Conservatives, aided by the General Government and by the Conservatives of the State of Boyaca and Cundinamarca, have for the past six months been endeavoring to subvert the Liberal State Government of Santander. In the latter State the war has broken out anew, but this time it appears the Conservatives have suffered a signal defeat.

The contending parties met at Concepcion at 7 in the morning, and fought until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Conservative force was completely destroyed or scattered. The Liberals left 150 of their opponents dead on the field, and took 300 prisoners. They also took 400 stand of arms and two cannon. All their officers were taken, including the leaders—Lorenzo Canal and Eugenio Mendoza. Marquez, the commander of the Conservative forces, was killed. The following list of their officers, Gutierrez, Villanueva, Prince Quintana and others, besides 40 to 50 men killed or badly wounded.

What a beautiful commentary is this on the claim set up by these South American States of their capacity for self-government! Here are two in a confederacy of eight States, which confederacy has been on its legs only a year and a half, the people of each cutting each other's throats, instead of appealing to the ballot-box to settle their political differences; the Liberals having actually turned out the Conservative State authorities at Cartagena, neck and heels, and the Conservatives losing 500 men in a single fight to subvert the Liberal State government of Santander! And yet these people have the most charming theories of self-government always on their lips, and are continually boasting of their superior morality, intelligence and patriotism!

In an article, thickly interspersed with errors, on the late conspiracy in Costa Rica, in the New-York Herald of Sept. 18, occurs the following passage in regard to President Mora:

"His aversion to foreigners, especially to the people of the United States, was deep-seated. In respect to the latter, he was bitterly suspicious, distrustful, and it is not too much to say he was stupidly hostile."

This great at the Herald results from its habit of keeping a tailor in its establishment, who presumes to cut a decently-fitting coat for a man without taking his measure. Because Gen. Mora has had such good cause to dislike Americans, the Herald jumps at the conclusion at once that he hates them, and thinks it was no risk in pretending to know positively what it only guesses at. No man knows better than Gen. Mora that the American portion of the Walker pirates were principally broken-down Southern gamblers, bar-room loafers, and refugees from justice; and that one-half of them were Irishmen, Germans, and other Europeans of the same character as the American portion. And no man knew better than Gen. Mora that nine-tenths of the people of the United States had no other wish, in regard to these men, than that they should each grace the end of a strong halter, or become food for the turkey-buzzards of Costa Rica and Nicaragua. Your correspondent has had frequent conversations with President Mora, both in Costa Rica and out of it—has been in correspondence with him for two years, and has frequently heard him express the great admiration of the American people and the hope that the people of Spanish America might yet emulate their patriotism, intelligence and thrift. He has heard him regret that honest, industrious Americans, as well as Europeans, could not be induced to settle in Costa Rica and cultivate her rich tobacco and coffee lands, and was instrumental in framing land laws which he deemed essential to accomplishing this end. His treatment to the filibusters, in locking them and sending them home, when he had them in his power, did not evince any very inveterate hostility to even renegade Americans. President Mora is a man of too much intelligence to be "stupidly hostile" to the people of any nation.

The Legislature of Panama has passed a law on [illegible] making it obligatory on persons who wish to dig on unoccupied lands to get a license of thirty days' from the proprietor. Of course, in such a thinly populated territory as Chiriqui, the law could not be enforced if gold-seekers should go there in any considerable numbers. But the lessons will not produce sufficient gold in future to attract attention from abroad. In December, when the rains shall have ceased, a hundred or two of persons will go from Panama to gold explorations, but will probably leave gold gold they will take away.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The package of English papers by the Indian, forwarded upon the arrival of that vessel at Quebec, reached this City early this morning. We complete the telegraphic abstract of news by interesting extracts.

Our South American correspondence is of more than ordinary interest. President Castilla, of Peru, a resolute and energetic man, was, by latest accounts, fitting out a formidable expedition against Ecuador; but it was believed that Ecuador would yield to the Peruvian ultimatum before the final outbreak of hostilities. Our correspondent also furnishes particulars of the arrangement under which the blockade of Guayaquil was raised. Divers military revolts and civil insurrections in Chili indicate an unsettled condition of affairs in that Republic. An important paper from the Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs intimates that the pending difficulties between our Government and that of Chili—one arising from the protection afforded by the American Consul at Valparaiso to political offenders, and the other being the affair of the American brig Townsend—will soon be satisfactorily adjusted.

Gen. Harney has written another letter to Gov. Douglas, of British Columbia, concerning the occupation of San Juan Island. The General says he does not feel authorized to withdraw his troops from the Island until the pleasure of the President can be made known.

Our dates from Utah are to Sept. 14. The party of emigrants reported to have been attacked by the Indians, were from Louisa County, Iowa, and Linn County, Mo. The Shoshonees killed one man and wounded three others. The wounded were cared for at the military post on Bear River, and a detachment had been sent in pursuit of the savages. A hand-cart train of Mormons had arrived in Salt Lake City. Superintendent Forney had returned from his visit to the Indians.

Returns from the various State elections, as fa as received, indicate increased Republican gains. In Baltimore the Reform Party, though unsuccessful, polled a larger vote than could have been anticipated, when it is considered that in many of the wards the Americans took entire possession of the polls, and prevented the foreign population from voting.

Mr. Phelan has renewed his challenge to Bennett, the English billiard champion, for an international match, to be played in this City, for $5,000 or $10,000 a side. Heenan, the "Benician Boy," is to take the place of Aaron Jones, who has conceded his right for the fight with the English champion Sayers. It is supposed the match will take place next May.

The Commissioners of Emigration met yesterday afternoon, but did not transact any business of importance. A proposition was received to build a boat-house for Dr. Gunn, at an expense of $300. The weekly report showed the number of emigrants arrived to be 1,832, making the number arrived during the present year, 62,529. The Commutation balance is now $25,861 36.

The steamer Yorktown, Captain Parrish, has arrived, bringing forty-six of the passengers of the Quaker City, who reached Norfolk by the Dandelion. The Messrs. Harbour & Co. refunded their passage money, and defrayed their other expenses. They will take the steamer Isabel, which leaves for Havana on the 15th.

The Tammany Hall Judicial nominations were made last night, as follows: Wm. E. Leonard for Judge of the Supreme Court; Jas. Montgomery and Anthony L. Robertson for Judges of the Superior Court; Chas. P. Daly for Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and Henry Alexander for Judge of the Marine Court. The impression prevails among the Tammany Hall men that these nominations will be adopted at Mozart Hall. The Assembly and Senatorial Nominating Conventions of the Mozart Hall Democrats met last night.

The Stock Market yesterday, though well maintained, and on the Western Stocks at higher prices, through the printed sales, closed dull after the Second Board, and at a decline of ⅛@¼ cent. The Money Market works steady. Exchange closed 110 on London for the Asia, which steamer carried out $224,000 in Specie. The new Board of Directors for the Erie Company have made Mr. Samuel Barlow their President, and Mr. Drew Vice-President. Mr. Bancroft Davis, Mr. Evans of England, now in this country, and Mr. Gelpcke were appointed a Committee to carry out the plan published a fortnight since, for reorganizing the finances of the Road, which meets the unanimous approval of the new Board.

The receipts and sales of Flour were less extensive. Prices of desirable lots advanced 5c.@10c. ⅌ bbl. Wheat was quite scarce, and held above the views of buyers. A moderate business was transacted in Corn, at steady rates. The sales of Groceries included 400 bags Santos Coffee, 750 hhds. Cuba Muscovado, and 100 hhds. Clayed Cuba Molasses, 100 bbls. New-Orleans do., with 170 hhds. Cuba Sugar, 122 boxes Havana do., and 300 cts. Rice, at previous figures. The Tea sale resulted in the disposal of the bulk of the lots offered at a shade easier prices for Green, and very full rates for Black. Cotton was purchased to the extent of 400 bales at former quotations. Hay, Hides, Iron, Naval Stores, Tallow, and Whisky, were moderately dealt in. A fair inquiry prevailed for Provisions, Whale-Sperm, Linseed, and Olive Oils; Spices, and Tin. Freights were less active, with 572 vessels of all classes in port.

The Live-Stock markets have been abundantly supplied again, this week, after the falling off in receipts last week. Of live animals destined for slaughter, there were received at the principal yards, during the week ending yesterday, 5,519 beef cattle, 805 veal calves, 13,660 sheep and lambs, and 9,232 swine; also, 122 milch cows. Total of all kinds, 29,344, or 5,228 more than last week. At yesterday's general weekly market, beef cattle sold hardly as well as at the previous market, and final sales were ½c.@1c. lower than the average, last week. No bullocks sold, yesterday, at rates higher than 10c. ⅌ lb. for the poorest dressed weight. Milch cows are selling rather better, with a small supply on hand. Veal calves are abundant, especially those too young and those too old to rank as veal. Good fat, or butcher's, old calves are in request. Both sheep and swine are abundant, but there is a good demand, and prices are unchanged.

Mr. Maagher and the Filibusters.—We are assured on good authority that the rumor referred to by our Washington correspondent, yesterday, connecting Mr. T. F. Meagher's visit to Costa Rica with the renewed Filibuster movement, is entirely unfounded. Mr. Meagher goes solely upon private business.

[illegible] are informed [illegible] has quite as little sympathy or connection with this movement, and that, although he at one time approved of the attempts of Walker and his associates, he has long since become convinced that they are highly injurious, not only to the country invaded, but to all the parties in any way connected with them.

This confirms the doubts we expressed yesterday morning, and inclines us to believe that the reports from the South greatly exaggerate the strength of the new movement. The Administration is now apparently sincerely opposed to the renewal of these attempts, and is ready to act with energy for their suppression, either at sea or in Nicaragua, if the parties engaged should succeed in leaving our ports. If this fact is distinctly understood, it will put an effectual check upon the movement. Walker has never embarked upon any of these expeditions except with the encouragement, express or implied, of the Administration; this, indeed, has always been his main reliance for success. If this has been decisively withdrawn, filibusterism will die a natural death.

The Killing of Broderick.

A communication in another column charges the death of Senator Broderick to the Administration of Mr. Buchanan. It treats it as an incident of political warfare, and adds the allegation, based on facts publicly known, that a purpose was at one time entertained to "get rid" of Senator Douglas in the same way. He was drawn into personal contentions by political opponents, with the obvious and indeed avowed intent of making up personal issues to be settled by the duel. We are by no means inclined to assent to these allegations in all their breadth. We do not suppose, for a moment, that the Administration Party resorts to homicide as a legitimate mode of silencing hostility, or that plots are laid to dispose of troublesome enemies by assassination.

Still we have no doubt that Mr. Broderick's death is due indirectly to his political conduct, —and we are equally convinced that Mr. Douglas has encountered personal, as well as political, perils from the course which he saw fit to take. The great evil of our public life is the intolerance and despotism of our party discipline,—especially in the ranks of the Democracy. It is all very well to say that this is a free country,—that every man is free to form his own opinions, and to make them the basis of his political action;—but the claim is only true so far as legal restraints are concerned. There is no law against a man's thinking, speaking or acting for himself, and without regard to anybody else, in politics, religion or any other department of social activity. He will not be hung, nor imprisoned, nor even arrested or watched by the police for so doing. But he will be punished in other ways, not a whit less efficacious, and scarcely less galling to a sensitive and honorable mind. He will be watched, criticized, censured, denounced, expelled and persecuted socially, by that compact and allied organization whose dictation he may disregard and with whose plans and purposes he may interfere. He will be reproached for his inconsistency, accused of treachery, and galled by all the stings and taunts which disappointed malice can suggest;—and he must either resent them or droop under them. This is precisely the ordeal to which Messrs. Douglas, Broderick, and those who acted with them in opposition to the Administration, have been subjected. They refused obedience to the dictation of the Democratic Party. When they saw fit to do so, they drew down upon their heads the resentment of the party leaders, and the special hatred of the men who expected to profit most by that party success which they had put in jeopardy. They were accordingly denounced, vilified, taunted and insulted, partly for the gratification of personal spite, and partly to degrade them and damage their influence with the public. Our politicians have not grown out of the vulgar habit of using Billingsgate and personal insult as legitimate weapons of political warfare.

This is the sentiment and the practice to which Mr. Broderick has fallen a victim in California; and he is not without his own share of responsibility for the result. We believe much that has been said by the Tribune, Post, Philadelphia Press, and other political journals—to whose party purposes his coöperation had become important—of his personal character and integrity, to be entirely true. As a man and a Senator, we do not doubt he was honest, frank and manly, and that in these respects he was superior to many of his Senatorial associates. But as a politician he was like the rest—bold, unscrupulous and intolerant. He retorted harsh language, and dealt plentifully in the reproaches and taunts which were employed against him. He was never easy or contented in the Senate—for he had the good sense to feel his lack of qualifications for that place much more sensitively than many no better qualified than he. This made him distrustful and jealous of others—fearful that he had less influence than was due to his position, and inclined to compel the deference which he could not win. This was unquestionably the origin of his quarrel with the President and his rebellion against the Administration régime in California, where local dissensions aggravated the quarrel, and thus enlarged the circle of his political foes. These party collisions ran rapidly into personal quarrels, and as such were prosecuted with all the venom and hatred belonging to the reckless passions of the men engaged. There were several persons in high official station who were ready to challenge him, and probably if he had escaped unhurt from his first meeting, he would have been summoned to another. Unfortunately for him, his first antagonist seems to have been capable even of a cold-blooded murder. With that black-hearted debasement of the duelling code peculiar to our day, he seems to have taken every possible advantage of his opponent; to have selected the weapons with which he was most familiar; put himself in the position most favorable to security; taken deliberate and careful aim, and shot his antagonist after the latter's pistol had been discharged. If there is any distinction between this act and murder, it must be sought outside both the legal and the moral codes.

One of our cotemporaries speaks of the "remedy" for such evils as being "plain." "Let the hearts of the people," he says, "be set as a flint against electing men to office who will either give or accept a challenge; and let those who dare thus to set the laws of the land at defiance be dealt with just as other murderers are." This is equivalent to saying "Let the evil be remedied and a remedy will be applied." The people will not do any such thing. On the contrary, it is the people themselves who give vitality and force to the system of party bullying, of which the duel is only an incident. It is they who encourage and applaud the taunts and criminations,—the reproaches [illegible] scourge [illegible] who dare to think or act for themselves. The whole Administration Press and party applauded the personal assaults of Toombs, Mason, Brown and Jones upon Senator Douglas for opposing the Lecompton policy. The whole Douglas and Republican Press was equally emphatic in approving Mr. Broderick's coarse denunciations of the President and of Dr. Gwin. Each party is equally ready to applaud insult and invective when employed on its behalf,—and both are equally horrified when these lead to their legitimate results. We shall have no reform in assassinations until we have a radical reform in the coarse abuse which leads to them;—and this we cannot look for until our people become more tolerant of political differences, and less exacting and despotic in their party discipline.

The President and the Chinese Question.

Mr. Buchanan, since his inauguration into office, has been a very "Hans in Luck." One pear after another has ripened and dropped into his nerveless hand, only to fall to the ground again, untasted and unenjoyed.

The Kansas Question, the Mormon Question, the Fillibuster Question, the Central American Question, the Mexican Question, have all been in his hands to settle forever, with a glory beyond the dream of ordinary Presidents. He has trifled with them all, and sacrificed all in succession to his own timidity, or to the exigences of party.

The Chinese Question now puts itself forward, with a fresh appeal to the President for such a decision as may almost redeem all the failures of the past, and mark with statesmanship of the first rank an administrative career which threatens else to die out in poor chicaneries, and devices as devoid of dignity for the President as of fruit for the nation.

The American policy in China has been marked and clear from the first. It is now growing complicated with eventualities which must have been foreseen as possible, though there has been much reason given us, especially in the last two years, to regard them as improbable. When the English authorities first resolved to enforce respect for foreign flags and for foreign commerce upon the Celestial Empire, they called upon us for active coöperation in the attempt. The arguments which they used in this demand were plausible enough. We were in point of fact the second commercial nation represented in the Chinese seas; and the yearly advance of our interests there promised soon to put us on a level with themselves, if not to give us the absolute leadership of the Chinese trade with Christendom. We had suffered injuries and outrages in the persons and property of our citizens trading with China, which we might be supposed anxious to redress and avenge, especially since the protection of our people in the Chinese waters had for years been very largely confided to others than our own national officers. Why, then, should not the stars and stripes be arrayed beside the Union Jack in the demands of the Fanqui upon the brother of the Sun and Moon?

The answer to these questions was, however, and happily not very far to seek. While we acknowledged and acknowledge our indebtedness to the British men-of-war in the Chinese seas for services which we have never been slow to repay on occasion, and which Commodore Tatnall, in the recent attack on the forts of the Tien-tsin, even lavishly returned in kind, we cannot forget that the immediate objects of England in China, and the general reputation of England in Asia, make it highly undesirable for us to be identified with her actions in the eyes of the Chinese nation. England, as the mistress of India, is concerned to enforce upon China regulations and concessions in regard to the opium-trade with which we can have no possible national concern or sympathy. There can be no better reason for our making ourselves part and parcel of the English remonstrances against the exclusion of opium from the Chinese ports, than for our lending our riflemen and our ships to the French in an attempt to force the consumption of cognac on the people of Scotland.

England appears, furthermore, as a sort of modern Rome in the Eastern Continent. Her flag, which floats from the borders of Nepaul to the waters of the Bay of Bengal in India, floats also along the Chinese coast at half-a-dozen stations, wrung from the "Empire of the Centre" by force of arms. It surely is not unnatural that the Chinese, "deceitful barbarians" as they are, should suspect deceit and intended conquest in each new onslaught of the British power. As little is it unnatural that we, to whom territorial conquest in China is equally impossible and undesirable, should decline to make ourselves the instruments of achieving such conquest for another Power, which, however friendly, is still a foreign, and, to a certain extent, must always be a rival State.

Committed therefore to concerted action with England up to a recognizable point, but beyond that bound to an independent course, our relations with China have always offered a field, equally difficult and important, for the exercise of the highest statesmanship. Our actual Minister to China, Mr. Ward, in a letter which we published on Tuesday morning, avowed his belief that the moment is at hand in which it will be necessary to assert our common dignity as a Christian Power in China, while still preserving an independence of the special purposes of other Christian Powers with whom we must, however, necessarily act.

The reported seizure and confinement of Mr. Ward at Pekin, should it be unfortunately confirmed, will strengthen those views of the policy now incumbent upon us, without at all weakening the reasons which make it a state necessity for us to hold an isolated attitude before the Chinese Government. If we assume the worst to have happened; that the American flag—the very existence of which, as Mr. Ward informs us, was unknown to the Tartar soldiery who defeated the English attack on the forts of the Tien-tsin—has been disregarded, and the American representative subjected to outrage, it would still be the height of national folly for us so to coalesce with Great Britain in an effort to secure satisfaction as to be confounded with Great Britain in the general feeling of the Chinese people. Here then is the problem now set before our President and people.

We must be prepared to take the most energetic steps, should such be found requisite, to vindicate our position in China; but we must be careful to see that it be our position, and our position only, which we do so vindicate. To do this it may be necessary for us to put forth such a display of national strength as the country has never before been called on to make. But this is the condition of holding a great rank among the nations of the world; and it is doubtful indeed whether, of all the opportunities that have been offered to and thrown away upon Mr. Buchanan since he came into office some [illegible] who have taken the lead in the movement to secure for the President the credit of originating the movement, [illegible] distinction as the country has presented to him, of setting America right with Europe, and securing respect for her upon China, without sacrificing intrinsic right or our national interests in a paroxysm of which, should it unhappily be undertaken, others than ourselves must inevitably reap the most substantial fruits.

The Democratic Revival.—The renewed movement in the ranks of the Democratic Party seems to be making good progress. The Committee, which has been enlarged to thirty-one members, has addressed a circular call to prominent and influential Democrats, inviting them to attend a meeting this evening at its Fifth-avenue Hotel, for the purpose of promoting the desired reorganization of the Democratic Party. The meeting, it is announced, will be private;—its objects, however, are stated in the circular which we publish in another column.

As we have said heretofore, this is purely a party movement,—aiming solely at the reform of the party organization, and the overthrow of the rowdyism which has obtained control of it, and which uses it solely for the promotion of its own interests. The whole machinery of the party,—its committees, conventions, inspectorships, &c., &c.,—are now in the hands of its lowest and worst members,—men who care nothing whatever for its principles or its character, but who use their power to block mail candidates or put in office men who will give them large slices of fat contracts and ample opportunity to plunder the public treasury. It is the ruffians and the rowdies of the City who in this way make our Aldermen, our Councilmen, and our Judges. They have become the masters of the Democratic Party, and, through that, the rulers of the City. The present movement is designed to dislodge them. If it succeeds they will be required to abandon the power they have usurped, and give place to men for whom the party is willing to be held responsible.

As might be expected, it meets the active opposition of the class which is to be affected by it. It is denounced by their organs—and by organs of the Republican Party also—as a movement of the rich against the poor: and every possible effort is made to bring it into discredit and so deprive it of influence. There is little danger that these endeavors will meet much success. Our City affairs have reached so low a point, and the general character of the rulers whom the present machinery gives us, is so well understood, that these appeals to the most vulgar of prejudices are not likely to produce much effect. Every good citizen, whatever may be his party relations, is interested in the success of this reform movement: for it will not only give the Democratic Party better candidates, but it will thus give the City one chance less of having bad rulers.

A Church Brawl.—There has been a tremendous uproar raging in London for two or three months, owing to riotous demonstrations taking place every Sunday, in a church in the east end of the city, known as "St. George's in the East." The rector, it appears, is a Puseyite, of the most advanced type, who, besides divers innovations in costume, manner of conducting the service, &c., finally raised the altar to the standard Roman Catholic height, and lighted wax candles upon it. The result was that the congregation hooted him every Sunday, and the church wardens in vain protested against his doings. As a last resource, to end the scandal, the Bishop of London has closed the church for the present.

It has been remarked that there are clergymen amongst us in this City who afford just as striking demonstrations of their high church zeal as the unlucky rector of St. George's in the East, and yet are not disturbed by a mob. But there is an important distinction between the Episcopal Church organization here and in England. With us, the minister of each church is chosen by the Congregation, and may be dismissed by them; while in England, the flock have no more to do with selecting the pastor than sheep with choosing their shepherd. The minister is there presented to the church, by the owner of the living, who is generally a layman, and if the congregation does n't like him, they have no remedy, and he may set them at defiance. In this country, if a clergyman chooses to indulge in any peculiarities of ritual or ceremonial, he must do so with the approbation of his people. If he cannot obtain this, he must either curb his zeal, or go elsewhere. This secures peace, at least, and saves us from scandals like the one we discuss. If the same system prevailed in England, the English Church would be much less frequently disturbed than it is at present.

Musical.

Drayton's Parlor Operas.—For a full and particular account of what constitutes a parlor opera, see advertisement in another column. Mr. Drayton's editor leaves nothing to be said on that point.

The first entertainment took place last night, at the French theatre, and was a success. A new idea, skilfully elaborated, and pleasantly presented, is sure to be a success in a City fearfully nigh-mared as this is, by all that is old and wearisome. Two little one act operettas were given; the first called "Never Judge by Appearances;" the second, "Diamond cut Diamond." In a literary point of view they are mere trifles, but acceptable because without pretence. The music is of the French school. Franchey; to be estimated by the mile not the measure. There is not, that we could detect, a memorable phrase in either work. But as a compensation—and a good one—plenty of rhythmetic vivacity, and, as we have before remarked, no pretence. A small orchestra plays the accompaniments.

Mr. Drayton is not only a good singer, but an admirable actor. He could obtain, instantly, a first-rate position on the regular "boards" of New-York, if he were so disposed. His voice, although naturally of the deepest, has been trained to discourse most eloquently in the upper regions. He uses a partly falsetto with good effect, and with all the hardihood that a French method imparts to that musical agony. Mr. Drayton, by his presence, his bearing, and his talent, won the applause of the house and deserved it.

Mrs. Drayton appeared to be laboring under a severe cold, and was impeded, not only in singing, but in speaking. Her performance, under the circumstances, was extremely creditable. She has the method of a good and well educated artiste, and will, we hope, develop a voice worthy of the cultivation she has evidently bestowed on it. Mrs. Drayton is also an actress of merit, and plays with spirit.

The entertainments will, we have no doubt, become popular. They are novel, elegant and pleasing. We would suggest, however, a liberal interpolation of songs. The masses love to hear melodies that are distinct and shapely in their character. Such pieces may be introduced with propriety, and being sung in English, will, undoubtedly, reward the taste that selects them.

Concert on Staten Island.—Miss Gellie, an artiste who is well known and esteemed in the City will give a concert to-night at the Pilot Hotel, New-Brighton. Mr. W. A. Cooke, Mr. John Kyle and Mr. Louis Schreiber will assist, and Mons. S. Millar will preside at the piano-forte.

Niblo's Saloon.—An excellent and most deserving concert will be given here to-night by Mrs. Junius T. Sprague, in aid of a charitable object. The programme contains thirteen pieces, and will be interpreted by Mrs. Sprague, Signor Rocco, Mr. Wm. Sharp and a grand orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Arcuffi.

Messrs. Kerner & Birch, of the Clarendon Hotel in this City, have again leased the Ocean House at Newport for the term of two years.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Nova Scotia Dispute—Important Opinion of the Attorney-General—Its Influence on Foreign Affairs—Fraudulent Sales of the Mineral Lands.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

It is not true, as stated in the dispatch to the Herald, that England has demanded an explanation from our Government with reference to the course pursued by Gen. Harney. On the contrary, the project submitted by Lord Lyons was a proposition for a settlement of the dispute, as the Treaty provides no remedy in case of a disagreement between Boundary Commissioners. The Treaty being thus exhausted the parties are thrown back on first principles, and England now submits a programme for an adjustment of the difficulty, in which she claims the island of San Juan.

Secretary Cass has just returned his reply to this proposition, declining in the most positive terms to recognize so much as the shadow of a title on the part of England to the disputed Island.

This is the present condition of the question and it remains for England to take the next step, as we hold possession. This turn in affairs is regarded as very serious by our Government, and the result, whether it be peace or war, depends entirely upon the tenacity with which Great Britain holds to her pretended claim.

The Episcopal Convention.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION—CONSECRATION OF BISHOPS.

Richmond, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

A large number of resolutions and amendments to the Constitution were presented in the Episcopal Convention to-day, but nothing final was done in relation to them. A greater portion of the day was spent in discussing the proposed amendment to article 6, to allow the General Convention to establish a Court of Appeals for the revision of decisions of the Diocesan Courts in the trial of Presbyters and Deacons, but no action was had. The consecration of bishops will take place to-morrow in three different churches. A proposed arrangement for performing the ceremonies in the Capitol grounds occasioned an exciting debate in the House of Deputies.

Thursday is the great day of the Fair, which closes on Friday night.

There will be the best trotting to-morrow ever shown, with an equal number of horses, in Connecticut. Twelve or thirteen horses came up to-night from New-York and Brooklyn. Among the horses now here is a span belonging to Thos. C. Acerson, of New-Jersey, and another belonging to A. W. Knapp, of Bennington; also the Granger horse, &c.

ELECTION NEWS.

The Election in Pennsylvania—Rejoicing of the Victors.

From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

As District Attorney Mann was the principal object of the assaults of the Democratic leaders during the campaign, so he was the great centre of congratulation and rejoicing after the result became known. Eager friends hurried to his house, at the Northwest corner of Fifth and Green-streets, with the details of the results of the battle, and as the figures from the different Wards were put together and ciphered out, the interesting fact that Mr. Mann was re-elected became manifest, and the successful candidate underwent a course of hand-squeezing which was scarcely excelled in the experience of a popular President on an official tour. By ten o'clock the grand result was distinctly known, and then the crowd fairly took the house of the District Attorney by storm. By eleven o'clock the surging crowd was increased by the arrival of torch-light processions from all parts of the city; the Associations from the Eleventh and Twelfth Wards marched up Green-street, the lower wards swarmed along Fifth-street, while the legion from the Twentieth Ward poured down Green. All these processions centred at Fifth and Green streets about the same moment, and the scene was striking and picturesque. Lanterns and all sorts of illuminated devices were carried by the persons in the crowd, pitch-pine torches cast their murky glare around, blue and red lights were burned, and the glittering fire-balls from Roman candles flashed high in the air. Mr. Mann made his appearance at his door-step in response to the vociferous calls of the immense multitude, and cheer after cheer went forth. After quiet had been restored, the District Attorney spoke in substance as follows:

Mr. Mann commenced by saying, that in an age gone by, when a man was assailed or outraged, he called together his clan and vindicated himself by his strong arm and the weapons of his friends. During the late campaign, when he was assailed, and almost overwhelmed by calumny and abuse, he had almost sighed for the return of the ages of force, that he might meet wrong with force. (Cheers.) But we live in an age of peace, when law and a quiet but powerful public opinion would vindicate the oppressed and redress their grievances. (Applause.) He had appealed to the sense of justice of the community for support and justification, and he thanked Heaven that his appeal had been responded to nobly. (Cheers. Mr. Mann alluded to the generous manner in which his friends had rallied to his support, and he referred to the fact that even the old Eleventh Ward, "the cradle of Democracy," had nobly come to the rescue and had given him a majority. (Cheers.) When he saw his friends of his immediate neighborhood thus generously sustaining him in his hour of peril, he felt like the Scotchman when he exclaimed, "My foot is upon my native heath and my name is MacGregor!" This apt quotation was received with sounds other than of cheers. The speaker then referred to the happiness [illegible]

Philadelphia, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

Mann's (Opposition) majority for District-Attorney is 8,[illegible].

Conrad's majority for Auditor-General in Philadelphia is 9,[illegible].

Kerr's majority for Surveyor-General is 2,[illegible].

The Opposition also elected one State Senator, and five out of the seventeen Representatives from this city.

The indications are that the Senate will contain three Opposition majority, the Representatives one in Philadelphia and one in the Western district.

The House will probably stand Opposition 54, Democrats 46. The Opposition have three members in Philadelphia, one in the Lehigh district, one in Lycoming, one in Centre, one in Blair, and one in Franklin counties. The House last year stood Opposition 67, Democrats 33.

Municipal Election in Baltimore.

RIOTING AND VIOLENCE—THE FOREIGN VOTE EXCLUDED FROM THE POLLS—PARTIAL RETURNS OF THE REFORMERS.

Baltimore, Wednesday, Oct. 12—[illegible].

The municipal election for the City Council is going on to-day. There is a large turnout of citizens as well as voters. At many of the West ward places the windows are blocked by movable shutters against all naturalized voters, and intimidation and even violence is resorted to. The police, with very few exceptions, fail to do their duty, or to carry out the instructions of the Mayor. It is still hoped, however, that some of the club nominees will be defeated. The Mayor's Office is thronged with delegations of reformers, making complaints of the inefficiency of the police.

Wednesday, Oct. 12—Afternoon.

In the latter part of the day there was considerably more violence and intimidation at the polls than during the morning.

In the Ninth Ward the Reformers were driven off and at about 3 o'clock their candidate withdrew in disgust.

In the Twentieth Ward there was a great deal of violence during the afternoon. Mr. [illegible] of the firm of Frank & Sutton, was severely beaten and his cheek bone crushed in.

Notwithstanding the rowdies, however, the Reformers have done nobly, and but for the violence and illegal voting would undoubtedly have swept the City.

In the Tenth Ward Jesse Hinkley, the candidate of a notorious club, is defeated by the Reform candidate, who has 122 majority. In this Ward most of the respectable voters were maltreated, and consequently the triumph is a great one.

THE VOTE, WHEN THE REPORTS

Eighteenth	512	543	[illegible] A.
Nineteenth	374	543	[illegible] A.

There is no return from the Twentieth Ward, and it is reported the ballot-box was smashed.

The result shows that the naturalized voters were almost entirely excluded from the polls, but notwithstanding this, the Reformers carry seven wards.

With two or three exceptions, the most objectionable candidates are defeated.

There is a vast improvement in the character of the new Council.

The Thirteenth Ward Reformers balloted the American nominee, and claim him as a Reformer.

The friends of Reform are greatly encouraged, and hope to achieve a complete triumph in the State election.

Leaving out the Twentieth Ward shows that the Americans have only 667 majority, which they had 19,000 in the last Mayor's election.

But little more than half the votes of the city were polled.

Iowa.

SCATTERING RETURNS—THE RESULT NOT DECIDED.

Chicago, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

There being but four telegraph offices in the State of Iowa, some days must elapse before the result of the election can be definitely ascertained.

Scott County gives 300 Republican majority for the State ticket.

Louisa County gives its Republican majority.

The same scaffold had been in use over two months, and had often borne the weight of eight men. All who were on it at the time it fell had assisted in its construction, and believed it to be perfectly safe. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death. WM. R. ROBERTSON and HENRY MASTER, the two men who were dangerously injured, still remain in a critical condition.

FOR EUROPE.—The Cunard steamer Asia left yesterday for Liverpool, taking ninety-seven passengers and $234,759 in specie. Among her passengers are the Rev. Dr. NEWMAN, of Newark, and Mr. R. G. MENZIES, of the British Legation, at Washington. The screw steamer Glasgow also left yesterday at the same hour for Glasgow. THE EMPIRE CLUB.—A regular meeting of the Empire Club was held last night at the corner of Catharine-street and East Broadway. The number in attendance was limited, owing to the greatest interest in the proceedings at Tammany Hall. No business of moment was transacted, and the Club adjourned at an early hour.

Police Reports.

THE SWINDLER'S HARVEST TIME.—At this season when country traders are wont to visit the City, confidence sharpers are quite prepared to victimize them. Matthew Duffy, one of the most noted operators of this class, was caught yesterday by Detective Farley and temporarily committed by Alderman Brady, on suspicion of having obtained, in the old-told way, $100 from Mr. Titus W. Burtis, a merchant of Potter County, Penn. Mr. John L. Small, of Monmouth, Maine, who arrived yesterday by the Fall River boat, was met on the pier by another of the crafty rogues and depleted to the extent of $35.

ALLEGED COUNTERFEITERS.—Three complaints were made yesterday against Samuel Russell and Samuel Snow, who were arrested on Tuesday night on a charge of passing counterfeit bills on the Merchants' Bank of New-York. Justice KELLY held them to answer. The counterfeits may be easily distinguished from the genuine, as they lack the signature of a Registrar.

A DISHONEST BOATMAN.—James Augustus Hogencamp, who was employed as bowsman on a coal-boat lying at the foot of Leroy-street, is charged with breaking open the captain's trunk on Tuesday night, and taking $40, which he squandered in dissipation. He was arrested in the midst of his revels, but none of the money was found in his possession. Justice KELLY held him for examination.

DEMOCRATIC REFORM—CALL OF THE COMMITTEE FOR A MEETING OF DEMOCRATS.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1859.

At a meeting of Democrats, held at the Everett House, on the 7th inst., for the purpose of suggesting an efficient permanent organization in view of the great importance of the coming State and City elections, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That Watts Sherman, James Lee, Algernon S. Jarvis, E. M. Whitlock and Charles A. Lamont, be constituted a Committee, with power to add such names thereto as they may deem advisable, and with authority to request their Democratic fellow-citizens to attend a meeting for the purpose of consulting together as to the best interests of the Democratic Party.

In accordance with this resolution, the undersigned, [illegible] composing this Committee, request you to attend a meeting for the purpose aforesaid, at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, on Thursday evening next, the 13th inst., at 8 o'clock.

The undersigned feel it to be almost unnecessary for them to say that the sole object in view is to procure such an organization of the Democratic Party of this City, as shall exercise a conservative influence, tending not only to elevate the character of the Party, but also by securing the nomination of well-known and tried Democrats, of respectability and character, to thereby promote the public interests.

They are convinced that the counsels of a large body of well-known Democrats cannot fail to produce valuable results.

They therefore now ask you to coöperate cordially with them, and with the leaders of the party, believing that much good can thereby be accomplished.

If, however, by continued indifference as to their representatives, the people of New-York choose to allow, without interference, the selection of candidates who do not fairly represent either the whole party, the tax-payers, or the commercial interests of the City, it must be inferred that the acknowledged evils of our party organization, and of our Municipal Government, resulting therefrom, are not yet sufficiently oppressive to enlist your active coöperation in producing a remedy.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

THE BEAKER WAY.—AVA meeting of the Board of Health, last week, a complaint was made against the offal contractor, with it was alleged permitted an unreasonable number of dead animals to accumulate at the wharf, foot of Clinton-avenue, the place of shipment. At a meeting of the Board yesterday, the Contractor appeared in person to answer the complaint. He denied that there was any reasonable ground for the complaint that had been made, and that at the time a coffed there was a heavy storm prevailing, so that his vessels could not be got out. The further consideration of the matter was postponed.

GRAND CONCERT IN BROOKLYN.—A grand vocal concert is arranged for to-morrow, Thursday evening, to come off in Brooklyn, at the Middle Reformed Dutch Church, in Harrison-street, near Court. The entertainment has been originated for the benefit of the church, and promises, from the variety and known excellence of the artists engaged, to be excellent. The names of Miss M. SALSBURY, Mme. COLBRY, and several other distinguished singers, are on the programme, the concert to be under the conduct of J. M. HIGNET.

POLITICAL.—The American Convention for the Second Judicial District met yesterday afternoon and adjourned to the 18th inst.—the day on which the Republican Convention is to meet. It is supposed that the two Conventions will be able to unite upon one candidate for the Supreme Court Bench without much difficulty. The leading candidates are PHILIP S. CASORE and GEORGE G. REYNOLDS, both residents of Kings County, and both are said to be alike acceptable to the Republicans and Americans.

COLLISION.—While the steamer Fulton was passing up the East River yesterday, on her way to the Morgan Iron Works, the tide carried her, with great force, against the new ferry pier, at the foot of South Eighth-street, doing considerable damage to the pier, and breaking one wheel of the steamer.

DROWNED.—On Tuesday night, JAMES CARDON, while going home, accidentally fell into Gowanus Bay, from Hamilton, near Second-avenue, and was drowned. The body was recovered yesterday and delivered to his family.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—The members of this Association have recently received subscriptions amounting to about $4,000, to enable them to increase their library. They propose to expend $5,000 for this purpose the present season.

SAVING THE DIMES.—Up to, and including the 10th inst., 2,606 persons had deposited $62,950 in the Brooklyn Dimes Savings Bank, since it was opened in June last.

BROOKLYN POST-OFFICE.—On an average five thousand letters pass through the Brooklyn Post-office daily.

BROOKLYN COURTS.—Circuit Court Calendar for this day.—Nos. 19, 20, 25, 26, 29, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 45, 46, 49, 50. City Court—Nos. 11, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 30, 31, 34, 35, 36, 38, 39, 40, 42, 10, 43, 45.

In the Circuit Court yesterday, the case of MARY ANN HENNEY against E. G. WILKES and others, was called on for trial, and was on at the rising of the Court. The suit is brought to recover damages for the loss of her husband, who was killed by the explosion in WILKES & Co.'s safe factory, on Third-avenue a few years ago. The damages are laid at the highest amount ($5,000) that can be recovered in such cases under the statute.

Judge CULVER, of the City Court, on Tuesday, granted an injunction restraining the persons who ran on the "Coope ticket" at the recent election for Trustees of the Cemetery of the Evergreens, from interfering with the Trustees in possession until such time as the dispute can be passed upon by the Court. The injunction was granted at the instance of JAMES MYERS, Jr.

The trial of JAMES COLLINS, indicted for seducing BENJAMIN HANLEY, was concluded in the Court of Sessions, yesterday, before Judge MORRIS, when the jury rendered a verdict of guilty.

Judge MORRIS, on Tuesday, granted a temporary injunction, at the instance of the Broadway Railroad Company, restraining the Sewer Commissioners from constructing a sewer in South Seventh-street. The digging of the sewer undermines the Railroad track, and each party claims that the other ought to bear the small expense necessary to keep the road in running condition. Their differences were finally brought before the Court for settlement in this way. The case will be argued some time the present week.

PERSONAL.

Among the distinguished arrivals by one of the recent steamers from Europe, is Madame OMAR Pacha, wife of the celebrated Turkish commander who won so many laurels in Silistria. We understand that she has come to reside in this country, at least for the present. Her history is somewhat remarkable. She is a native of Transylvania, and at 11 years of age was sent to school at Bucharest, where she developed a wonderful genius for music, and at fifteen had become celebrated in private circles by the brilliancy of her performances. OMAR Pacha was at that time Military Commander of Wallachia, and meeting the young lady at a soirée, was delighted, first with her music, and then with her manners and conversation—became devoted to her, and finally married her. Not sharing at this time the Turkish notions about women, instead of shutting up his wife at home, she was allowed to accompany him in his military expeditions, and composed several pieces of military music, which became favorites with the Turkish army during the campaign. After the war was over, the Marshal, yielding to more ambitious views, and conforming to the custom of his country, married the daughter of HAFIS Pacha, with whom he had maintained political relations, and direct[illegible] the young, Transylvanian to enter his harem. This, with a good deal of indignation and spirit, she refused to do,—but at once sought and procured a divorce from the Marshal, and some two years since repaired to Paris, where she has since resided. She has lived entirely in private, but has published several very popular pieces of music, and has become well known in the musical circles of the metropolis. She arrived in this City by the Arago a few weeks since, and intends to spend the Winter here.

Miss Charlotte Cushman and Miss Stebbins have left Paris on their way to Rome via Switzerland. Miss Stebbins has recei vedsome flattering orders from home, I hear, and also has been offered a handsome sum by a large porcelain manufacturer in England, for the privilege of copying her "Miner" on their work.

The Rev. Geo. C. Lucas, pastor of the Allen-street Presbyterian Church, has returned from Europe much improved in health, and expects to resume the duties of his charge next Sunday. His people have generously supplied the pulpit during his absence.

Mosler, the sculptor, is in Paris, on his way to England with his daughter, Mrs. Barnes, who is going to America by an early steamer. He will return immediately to Rome.

Madame Anna Bishop is to give concerts in Canada, assisted by the pianist Mills and Signor Morino, baritone.

The Hon. Joseph G. Loyd was inaugurated Chancellor of Washington University, at St. Louis, on the 4th October.

Senator Sumner, at last accounts, was on the point of leaving Frascati for Paris.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF PROF. JOHN P. NICHOL.

The Canada brings intelligence of the death of Dr. John P. Nichol, Professor of Astronomy in the University of Glasgow. He died at his residence in Rothesay on the 19th of September, of congestion of the brain. Prof. Nichol was a native of Brechin, in Forfarshire, where he was born on the 13th of January, 1804. After acquiring the ordinary rudiments of education, he entered King's College, Aberdeen, where, as a student of mathematics, he greatly distinguished himself. He was subsequently employed as a teacher in different towns, and filled the office of Rector of Montrose Academy. Having originally been intended for the Church, he went through a course of theological training; but literature and science proved more attractive than theology, and to these he specially devoted himself. In 1836 he was appointed by the Crown Professor of Astronomy in Glasgow University. His various works—The Architecture of the Heavens, The Solar System, The Planetary System, The Planet Neptune, and the Cyclopædia of the Physical Sciences—were all written with great chasteness and power. Prior to his death he was employed on a new edition of The Physical Sciences, to be published by Messrs. R. Griffin & Co., of London and Glasgow. He was also engaged on the new Cyclopædia of Universal Biography, now in course of publication by Mr. William Mackenzie, of Glasgow. In the Cyclopædia of Biography, published about five years ago by Messrs. R. Griffin & Co., the principal names in the department of the physical sciences were intrusted to Prof. Nichol. He likewise wrote numerous articles for various magazines and periodicals, and the columns of the Mail have occasionally been enriched with contributions from his pen. In the domain of moral science and philosophical investigation, Dr. Nichol has achieved a reputation scarcely less brilliant than in the peculiar walk of his professorship. As a public lecturer on his favorite science, he was greatly admired for the eloquence and beauty of his style, and the aptness of his illustrations. He visited the United States some ten years since, and delivered a series of brilliant lectures on Astronomy in this City and at other places. These discourses were afterwards collected and published in New-York. His last public appearance was in Glasgow, last Winter, when he delivered a lecture on Domestic Comet. Dr. Nichol was twice married, and by his first wife had a son and daughter, both of whom, with his second wife, survive him.

Col. Philip Hickey died at East Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 1, aged 82. He was some years since the only surviving citizen of Louisiana who was born within the present limits of the State as a subject of Great Britain, and who had lived under the Governments of the three great powers, of Great Britain, Spain and the United States. The capture of Baton Rouge destroyed the Spanish Government in West Florida, and the revolutionists assumed the Government. To this end Col. Philip Hickey largely contributed, out of the abundant money which he had inherited from his father, and still more by his personal efforts. He was a member of the Council and a Colonel of horse under the new Government, of which Dr. Fulwar Sk[illegible] was President. The flag which was adopted by the new Government, consisting of a white silk with a single star in the center, and which floated for two months from the staff which a short time before bore the grand banner of the Catholic Majesty of Spain, was first unfurled by Col. Hickey. This interesting memento was long treasured by him, and is doubtless now among his effects. It was the original of the Lone Star flag of Cuba.

Father Hennion, pastor of St. Mary's (Catholic) Church, in New-Bedford, died in that city Oct. 8. Father Hennion was in very high standing in New-Bedford, where his learning, piety and benevolence had made him a man of mark. Before his death he gave to his congregation a lot worth $2,500 for a pastoral residence, gave $1,200 to pay the debt due on the church building, and also cancelled a mortgage of $1,000, which he held on the Catholic Cemetery.

Gen. Samuel Cruikshank, a prominent merchant of Charleston, died at Baltimore on the 10th Oct., at the age of 69.

WINNICK THEATRE,
Broadway, opposite the Metropolitan Hotel.
UNIQUE AND ELEGANT MUSICAL NOVELTY,
"DEATOUR'S PARLOR GARDEN," AND LYRIC PROVERBS.
Mr. and Mrs. HENRI DRAYTON, of the Opera Comique de Musique of Paris, the Opera, Theatres Royal, Drury Lane, and Covent Garden, London, and the principal Continental theatres, have engaged the above theatre for a series of alternate nights, for the purpose of introducing to the American public their popular and truly novel
ENGLISH PARLOR OPERAS,
Founded on "PROVERBS" and "OLD SAWS,"
EVERY MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY EVENING.

This entertainment, although new in America, dates from an earlier period than the Opera itself; in fact, the Grand Opera, with its necessary chorus, may be said to derive its existence from the Opera Bouffe.
Cardinal Mazarin was the first to introduce the Opera Bouffe from Italy into France, and it was the principal pastime under Louis XIV., from the commencement of his reign until the advent of Lulli.
Like Mr. Drayton's operas, the plot generally served to illustrate some well-known proverb, such as "Never judge by appearances," "Never despair," &c.; hence these operettas were known, at that early period, under the title of "Proverbs."
During the reign of Louis XV., the Comtesse de Barry selected "Proverbs" for "Tableaux vivants," (hence their origin,) and the tongue of envy says, to show off her beauty.
"Proverbs" disappeared with the Revolution, and for thirty years lived only in the remembrance of the Ancient Régime, until they were resuscitated by that distinguished member of the French Academy, Alfred de Musset, under the name of "Proverbs Dramatiques."
The last of Marie Antoinette having acted in "Proverbs," contrary to the wishes of Louis XVI., who hissed her before the entire Court, is historical.
The great success of these "Drawing-Room Operas" stimulated Mr. Offenbach (the most popular composer of that kind of music in Paris) to add a small overture. He obtained the privilege of playing them in the "Theatre Comte," in Paris. He employed the most celebrated composers, such as A. Adam, M. Grisar, &c., and revived Mozart's "Impresario," and Rossini's "Inganno Felice." It is now the most popular amusement in Paris, and is known under the name of "Bouffe Parisiens."
The success of the "Opera Bouffe" and "Parlor Opera" on the Continent of Europe induced Mr. Drayton to introduce them in London, in which city, as well as in the provinces of Great Britain and Ireland, he, with Mrs. Drayton, (late Miss Susannah Lowe,) distinguished as the prima donna of the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden, Drury Lane, St. James in London, have, for four years, met with the most flattering success.
Mr. Drayton, in presenting this style of Opera to the American public, is encouraged by the hope that its completeness, compactness and elegance will insure both for him and Mrs. Drayton their support and favor, to merit which all their efforts are directed.
The Operas now per rotation are:
NEVER JUDGE BY APPEARANCES.
Written by H. Drayton; the music by E. J. Loder.
NEVER DESPAIR.
Written by H. Drayton, and founded on the well-known story of "Peyre-Jacques;" the music by J. F. Duggan.

ADVENTURE.

THE GREAT BALLOON

The Great Balloon of New Leans Approaching Completion and Shortly to be Tried for the Grand Three Days' Voyage to Europe—Mr. La Mountain Ready for the Adventure.

A [illegible] New-Yorkers were astonished to learn that a balloon was in process of construction which, when finished, would measure twenty-seven hundred feet, and embrace within its capacious chamber a building capable of large at that mentioned by the Times; that this monster would need 725,000 cubic feet of gas to expand its heaves sides to their full dimensions, and more than all were May surprised to learn that the balloon was designed, not for a trip across the Continent or into the Canada wilds, but for sweeping over the ocean, by invoking the aid of Science and defying that of Neptune. Mr. La Mountain's recent adventure, and the thrilling story of his sufferings, have for a time caused this enterprise to be forgotten. It has been progressing, nevertheless, quietly and steadily.

Mr. T. S. C. Lowe, the daring originator of the project, has not allowed his courage to be conquered or his enthusiasm to be cooled by the adversities of others. He could has been the progress of the work that he has felt himself warranted in beginning to fix above Reservoir Square, the use of which the authorities have granted him for the first, and we hope not the last occasion of the "City of New-York." The frame which is to surround the Square can hardly be completed until a height is to enclose the balloon entirely from public observation. A height of fifteen feet will be enough to make the process of filling comfortably private, to give an inducement to pay a small sum for admission to the main area. Those who flatter themselves that the lofty sides of the Reservoir will give them an upper hand in overlook operations, will undoubtedly be disappointed, as it is the intention to make application to the authorities to have the promenade closed to the public until the balloon shall be on its way to Europe. Ordinary coal gas will be employed for the inflation, special care being taken to purify it, so as to give it as great buoyancy as possible. Public curiosity will also be gratified by an opportunity of seeing the apparatus specially designed for this trial, on the contrivance of which Mr. Lowe particularly prides himself. The lime-stove, which will give heat without endangering the balloon by fire, and the propelling and steering apparatus which is to be driven by an Ericsson caloric engine, have been described, and will be on exhibition. Mr. Lowe has all the time kept his inventive genius hard at work devising ways and means to insure the success of his trip. Possibly he may be obliged to take a sail in the ocean before reaching the shores of the Old World, and to make this part of the trip as safe and comfortable as possible he has provided himself with numerous life-preservers, and a French metallic life-boat, capable of containing forty men in any sea, however rough. While the balloon is driving along at the rate of 100 miles an hour it is easy to see that considerable difficulty would attend a debarkation. Apparatus has been devised which, Mr. L. says, will so [illegible] the balloon that it cannot progress at the rate of more than three or four miles an hour. Should necessity require the abandonment of the air ship, it could be accomplished easily while going at this speed. Casualties by land have been equally provided against, and that he may not be carried by his accelerated velocity over the British Isles and the continent of Europe into Asia, Mr. L. has provided himself with several anchors. Two of them are comparatively light, weighing about twenty pounds each. Another, and the chief anchor of the trio, weighs sixty pounds, and is made of spring steel. This must stop the balloon when it reaches England, or take the island along with it. Instruments to determine the height of the air ship from the water, and its velocity and direction, all of which will be available in the darkest night, will be taken along. These instruments will be on exhibition under a tent in the square when the inflation of the balloon commences, which will probably be by Thursday of next week.

The process of filling will occupy about a week. Experiments will be made during this time to insure the security of the envelope, and if it should be found that it leaks, two or three additional coats of varnish will be applied. The ascension will be made as soon as possible after the balloon is filled. All that Mr. L. desires is a clear, still day; the most favorable time, he thinks, will be immediately after a storm. Then the air is likely to be quiet for a day or two, and according to the theories of MAURY, MAURY and MITCHEL, Mr. LOWE says that two days of fair weather after a storm insures five or six of a like character. He would have preferred an earlier part of the season to make his trial trip, and according to his original plans would have started sooner. He postponed the prosecution of his arrangements for some weeks, hoping that older aeronauts might take the initiative. As all their plans have fallen through, Mr. L. does not propose to wait for them any longer.

Who he will take up with him, he has not yet decided. The description of the ship, as given in the Times, attracted much extended attention that about one hundred letters have been addressed to Mr. LOWE, asking for the privilege of making the ascension with him. He has made no promises, although he expresses a desire to have as a companion some one who will make a graphic and accurate account of the excursion. Among the representatives of the Press, numerous candidates will undoubtedly be found who will be daring enough to attempt the trip.

Three weeks will probably determine the success or failure of this new attempt. It is to be hoped that Mr. LOWE'S daring may be rewarded with success. He scouts the idea of failure or casualty, claiming that the precautions which he has taken guard against both.

MR. LA MOUNTAIN IN TOWN.

Mr. JOHN LA MOUNTAIN, the aeronaut, arrived in this City yesterday, accompanied by Mr. MOSSMAN, his Troy agent. Mr. LA MOUNTAIN looks well, notwithstanding the hardships of his recent adventure. With the exception of a slight rheumatic attack, affecting his lower limbs, which was occasioned by his exposure to wet and cold in the wilds of Canada, he experiences no inconvenience from the results of his perilous voyage. His confidence in his theory of balloning remains unshaken; and he proposes at once to replace the wrecked Atlantic by no less than three balloons; two of which are to be used for local ascensions, and the third for a trans-Atlantic voyage. The work on these balloons will be prosecuted during the coming Winter. Mr. LA MOUNTAIN has no intention of relinquishing his project of a trip across the ocean; still contemplating it a feasible undertaking, and expressing himself able and willing to attempt it. During this Fall and Winter he proposes to make ascensions from different points, combining his trips, however, to short distances, and hopes to be able to accomplish his voyage to Europe in the early part of Spring.

The following letter from Mr. LA MOUNTAIN has been handed us for publication:

TROY, Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1859.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Permit me an opportunity, through the medium of the Press, to express to the many generous friends, who have extended to me their hearty congratulations on my escape from the Canadian Wilderness, my heartfelt thanks. And to those noble men who assisted Mr. HAYNOCK and myself to return in safety to our homes and families, I would say God bless you. Mr. AMOS GARDNER, who furnished us food, clothing and shelter, who in fact rescued us from the very jaws of death, will have a place in my heart's purest affection as long as life continues. And to ANDREW J. MOSSISON, of the Troy Times, who used the search, and to Messrs. CLARK, FAYAL, CLARK, (editor of the Journal,) CLARK, (editor of the Union,) RICE, TORLINSON, THOMPSON, and all the citizens of Watertown, who subscribed liberally, and organized in a body to search for us, I feel an interest in our behalf that was as disinterested as it was heroic. I would express my deep obligations. And, finally, the Press, whose mighty influence was exerted to elicit an interest in our behalf and a thorough search for the "lost balloonists," has fastened upon me a debt of gratitude which I fear I never can repay.

I have received many letters of congratulation, to which I am unable to make separate replies.

Very truly yours,
JOHN LA MOUNTAIN.

Errors in Mr. La Mountain's Narrative of the Late Balloon Voyage.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In reading the published account by Mr. LA MOUNTAIN of his recent perilous balloon ascension, my attention was called to some errors, which it is but just to correct.

First—As to "John Brown's Tract"—much misconception prevails as to the location and extent of this famous "Tract;" many persons speaking of it as identical with, and being the "Great Northern Wilderness of New-York," whilst in fact it is but a small portion of it, containing under the original surveys but eight townships of land. The "Moose River" and other tracts, with Totten and Crossfield's purchase, (the latter containing 50 townships,) all equally belong to and together form the "Northern Wilderness" of this State.

Second—Mr. LA MOUNTAIN says, "No spruce grew in the New-York wilderness that I found." This shows conclusively that he had never visited it, either with a balloon or otherwise, as spruce does exist there, and in the central portions of it in great quantities, as will be observed by any [illegible] who may visit the wilds of Hamilton County, in search of the different kinds of timber.

Third—Mr. LA MOUNTAIN, in speaking of his unfavorable sea of forest land, mentions trees shooting their towering bodies far up towards the clouds, and this "extending as far as the eye could reach in every direction," says, "I knew there were no such growths in the United States, save in the northern district of Maine." It may be a matter of surprise to those unacquainted with the fact, but it is nevertheless true, that the "northern wilderness" of the great State of New-York embraces about six thousand square miles—a surface of greater extent than the States of Connecticut. Lakes and streams abound, several ranges of mountains pass through it, scaling as peaks to an altitude of from three thousand feet to one mile in height, and thousands hundreds of places in this wilderness where an inexperienced person would be as irretrievably lost as in the wilds of Canada. The tourist can find, without difficulty, many places where, from the highest elevations, nothing but mountain, forest and lake can be seen as far as the eye can reach.

SPORTING NEWS.

The English Cricketers—Progress of the Game—The Twenty-two Out and All England in—A Game of Base Ball progressed.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

The weather is splendid, and the attendance at the cricket-ground large. The following is to-day's score of the American Twenty-two on their first innings:

Gibbs	b. Caffyn	30
Collis	b. Jackson	0
Sohier	b. Jackson	3
Vernon	c. Caesar b. Jackson	8
Morgan	b. Jackson	0
Wright	c. Lockyer b. Carpenter	3
Hayward	c. Lockyer b. Carpenter	0
Junot	c. Caffyn b. Jackson	1
Bayard	c. Caffyn b. Carpenter	1
J. Water	Run out	18
H. Fisher	b. Jackson	4
Hallin	Not out	7
Waterman	c. Carpenter b. Caffyn	0
Total		75
Add Monday's Score		32
Grand Total		94

FARR is disabled, and JULIUS CAESAR takes his place, Mr. ELLIS acting as umpire in place of CAESAR.

The English cricketers sent in HAYWARD and CARPENTER, to the bowling of HALLIN and GIBBS. A number of runs were made, notwithstanding the fine bowling, and WATERMAN was put on in place of GIBBS, but still without effect. HALLIN not being up to his New-York play, SENIOR, an under-hand bowler, now took his place, and soon after CARPENTER was caught by GIBBS, from SENIOR. CARPENTER'S score was 22.

One wicket down, 52 runs.

H. WRIGHT was put on instead of WATERMAN, and HAYWARD was caught by WILBY, from WRIGHT. HAYWARD'S score was 34.

DIVES was bowled by H. WRIGHT for nothing.

CAFFYN was bowled by SENIOR for four runs.

Four wickets down, 72 runs.

GRUNDY was caught by NEWHALL, bowled by SENIOR, after making five runs.

SUTPENSON was bowled by SENIOR for one run.

LILLYWHITE was bowled by SENIOR for nothing.

LOCKYER not out; eight runs.

WISDEN not out; nothing.

Leg byes, 4; wides, 7; total, 91 runs, for a loss of seven wickets.

The fielding of the Twenty-two is very good, that of the Americans being particularly fine. Their batting was also good, to-day. VERNON, MORGAN, BAYARD, JONES, WISTER and FISHER distinguished themselves, as did W. K. WISTER, NEWHALL and HALL on Monday.

The play of the Eleven, both at the bat and in the field, has been a delightful sight.

About 8,000 persons were on the ground, which is fitted up with commodious seats and platforms, a large portion of them being enclosed and roofed for ladies, of whom nearly a thousand were present to-day. A band of music enlivened the scene inside the grounds, and a "Greenwich Fair" is in full operation outside.

The All-England Eleven have received a challenge from a Base-Ball Club of this city, but as they have had no practice whatever in the game, they fear they would play it a la cricket, and intend to decline the challenge for the present; they have, however, obtained books of instruction and a specimen bat, and during the Winter and Spring will practice the game, so that, when they visit this country next year, (and they expect an invitation to that effect,) they will be able to change position with their American friends, and become students instead of professors. They propose to come earlier next year. The only engagement that interferes with this plan is the Canterbury Return Match, appointed for the middle of August. This match they will either play at an earlier day or postpone it altogether.

FROM KANSAS.

Leavenworth City Republican—Handsome Majorities for the New Constitution and Homestead—Kansas Republican by a Large Majority, &c., &c.

LAWRENCE, Kansas, Wednesday, Oct. 5, 1859.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Leavenworth City has gone Republican by over two hundred majority, upon the question of the ratification of the new Constitution. It was made a party issue by the Democracy, who rallied their strength to defeat the measure, but failed. The following are the figures:

For the Constitution	903
Against the Constitution	673
Majority for the Constitution	230

For the Homestead, 150 majority.

The Republicans in Leavenworth are very much elated at the result. A thorough organization has been effected, and in November next, upon the election of a Delegate to Congress, Mr. PARROTT will carry the city and county of Leavenworth by a large majority.

The returns, as far as received, show 2,281 for the Constitution to 845 against it—a majority of 1,536.

One thousand and seventy-eight for the Homestead to 107 against it—a majority of 971.

Topeka is the banner town as far as heard from—she gave 304 for the Constitution and none against it; 297 for the Homestead and none against it. The question of the capital influenced the vote—the new Constitution makes it the temporary seat of Government until removed by a vote of the people.

The following is the vote upon the Constitution: Leavenworth, 903 for, 673 against; Lawrence, 603 for 65 against; Topeka, 304 for, none against; Big Springs, 43 for, 7 against; Black Jack, 73 for, 1 against; Shannon Township, 171 majority for; Auskaloosa, 53 majority for; Lexington, 48 for, 41 against; Palmyra, 137 for, 7 against; Clinton, 200 for to 43 against; Blanton, 70 for, 4 against. Atchison is reported as giving only one majority for the Constitution; that town went Democratic at the recent municipal election by nearly 25 majority. The Republicans are gaining slowly but surely in that city.

All of the old border ruffians, Pro-Slavery men, Lecompton men, and BUCHANAN'S appointees, voted against the Constitution, which speaks volumes in favor of it.

An affray occurred in Leavenworth City on Monday evening last. At a meeting, DANIEL R. ANTHONY, Esq., who has been indicted by a Grand Jury for the rescue of CHARLEY FENZIA last Winter, made some reference to perjured jurymen, which was taken up by a fellow named GLADNEY, who was disposed to make a fuss. He asked ANTHONY if his remark applied to him? Mr. A. said that it did. A general melee then took place. The aforesaid GLADNEY was cut severely, but not mortally, with a knife in the hands of a person unknown. The notorious MILLER was knocked down. A few others were slightly injured. Order was finally restored.

The old border-ruffian element still remains in Leavenworth, and occasionally displays itself, but not so often as formerly. The Republicans have more pluck now than in times gone by, rendering it dangerous for the rascals to get up a muss, for if they do they are very apt to come off second best.

A difficulty occurred on Monday evening last between two men who had just arrived in the Territory from Illinois, near Oskaloosa, in Jefferson County. It was about a wagon. While one of them was asleep the other made an attempt to murder him with a pistol. Two shots were fired, taking effect in the face of the unfortunate man, who jumped up and ran to a house near by, and escaped. His wounds were dressed, and there is hopes of his recovery. The assassin was arrested, and is now in safe keeping, awaiting trial at the next term of Court.

His Excellency SAM MEDARY has published a card, stating that the Registry law passed last Winter by the Legislature, and signed by himself, is of no effect, null and void, cannot be enforced in the approaching election, because the act fails to have upon its face the date of its approval—the words "Approved February, 1859." For some cause they were omitted, and the Governor now makes it a sufficient reason for his not recognizing it as a law, and binding upon him.

The Hon. Mr. BURLINGAME arrived here to-day, and this evening he addressed a large crowd in the open air. His speech occupied two hours, was well received, and the speaker enthusiastically cheered throughout. It was an able effort, giving a brief history of the aggression of the slave power for the last half a century, the position of the National party of freedom upon the great questions of the day, &c.

More anon. JACQUES.

The Crockett (Texas) Printer states that a man named Reed, in Leon County, recently murdered his brother. The father and mother of the two young men had separated, and the sons took sides; the murderer said his brother should not appear in Court against his father; that he would kill him first. He was seen to take his gun and go in the direction of the field where his brother was pulling corn, and was seen after the gun fired hastily leaving the field. This, with his threat, fixes the guilt upon him.

THE QUAKER CITY.

Arrival of the Steamship Yorktown—Passengers—Capt. SHUFELDT's Account of the Disaster.

The steamship Yorktown, Capt. PARRIS, arrived about 11½ A. M. yesterday, from Norfolk, bringing forty-six of the Quaker City's passengers, in charge of Mr. JOHN Y. HARGOUS, who, with Dr. FUNNELL, have accompanied them since they left the ship. They immediately called at the office of Messrs. HARGOUS & Co., where their passage money was refunded. Their hotel bills and passage from Norfolk were also defrayed by the house. The Caledonia being already well filled with passengers, and the time for making arrangements being very short, only a few took passage by her. The larger part preferred to remain and take the Isabel, which leaves here on the 15th. By that time they also hope to recover their baggage, which they were obliged to leave on board the Quaker City. These passengers speak in terms of high eulogium of Captain SHUFELDT'S conduct.

His self-possession at the moment of alarm reassured every one. There were no boisterous outcries or confusion. Orders were given in a low tone of voice, merely sufficient to be heard by the person addressed. To guard against the possibility of a panic and its consequences, an officer was stationed at each of the boats with a weapon, and instructions to strike down any person who attempted to lay forcible hands on the boats. Everything moved on as if the disaster had been anticipated. Every man knew his place, and every order was promptly and cheerfully obeyed. The only incident approaching a catastrophe occurred as the last boat-load of women and children were disembarked. The steamer had lain drifting for some time, and the refuse from the kitchen had attracted a large number of sharks around the ship, which followed every boat as it passed between the two vessels. A seaman took a little child from the arms of its mother, and attempted to hand it to a person on deck; failing to catch it, the infant fell headlong towards the ocean and the jaws of a huge shark which at the instant yawned beneath to receive it. A sailor in the boat clutched at and caught the child just as it touched the water, and this time safely passed the little one on board. The mother, supposing her child to be lost, swooned, and was with difficulty removed from the boat. It is needless to say she was overjoyed to find the babe safe at her side.

The following is Capt. SHUFELDT'S letter to the owners:

STEAMSHIP QUAKER CITY,
AT SEA, Friday, Oct. 7, 1859.

MESSRS. HARGOUS & CO., NEW-YORK—Gentlemen: I have to inform you of an accident which occurred to the steamship Quaker City, at 1¼ o'clock, on the night of Thursday, the 6th of October, 35 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, which completely disabled the engine, leaving the hull of the ship in a sound condition, not leaking or straining it in the least; the accident to the engine being from some unexplained cause. No person injured.

I have deemed it necessary to send the passengers per bark Dunbeiton, of Boston, for which I have made a contract with Captain CHADWICK, to take them to the port of Norfolk, Va., for $1,000, for which sum I have given a draft upon your house.

I shall endeavor to make the nearest port north of Hatteras, with the Quaker City, under canvass, and should you deem it advisable to send a vessel to assist us, we may be fortunate in the neighborhood of 34° 30' and 75°.

The passengers and mails I send in charge of Mr. JOHN HARGOUS and Dr. FINNELL, the former being able to give you all the details relating to the accident, for which I have not time to mention herein.

Very respectfully,
R. W. SHUFELDT, Captain.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 12—P. M.

The Stock Market manifested increased firmness through the early session of the Brokers to-day, particularly on the Western Shares, three or four of which advanced ¼@1 ⅌ cent. on yesterday's rise. The top rate paid for Galena was 74⅞, for Rock Island 65, Toledo 21¼, and Michigan Central 43¼ ⅌ cent. New-York Central opened a little tame, in the dealings, both ways, the demand dull, and the offers to sell but limited, but on the second call of the stock it was taken quite freely at 80⅞@⅞. It then dropped off to 80¼@⅛ on the Street. At the afternoon Board sold at 80⅞ again, and finally closed on the Street 80¼ against 80⅞ on Tuesday. This decline influenced the Western Road stocks, and indeed the general Share list, with the exception of Panama, late in the day, and the market at four o'clock left off dull: Central 80¼, Galena 74, Rock Island 64¼, Toledo 21¼@21½, Michigan Central 43¼@¼, Michigan Guaranteed 17¼@⅛, Illinois Central 68¼@⅛, and Reading 40@40¼. There was a rise of 2¼@3 ⅌ cent. on Panama Shares, bids in the afternoon as high as 120¼ ⅌ cent., the demand coming from parties well posted on the advices by the Isthmus steamer this morning, which are represented to be unusually encouraging about the increase in both passenger and freight traffic at free prices. Pacific Mail was a little lower at the opening, but returned to 75 ⅌ cent., the price of Tuesday. There was more demand for Harlem Preferred, and a steady feeling in Hudson River. In State Stocks the business was large in Missouri's and Tennessee's at the advance noticed yesterday. Illinois Construction Bonds rose to 85 ⅌ cent., and only a few small parcels offered. New-York Central 7s, of 1876, brought 100¼, and there was a recovery of 1@2 ⅌ cent. in the mortgages of the Michigan Southern.

In the market for Money, the demand for short discounts at Bank has somewhat improved this week, the disposition to accommodate the regular dealers at 7 ⅌ cent. being quite free. Outside of Bank, some choice 60-day acceptances are taken at 6@6½ ⅌ cent., and prime lists of longer dates, indorsed, at 7 ⅌ cent. Fair or single names go at from 9 to 10 ⅌ cent.
